

One way I love property management.

I did a move in for a house last night. Both tenants are great people with strong applications. There were some last minute challenges in their application process for sure. As I like to get the story and facts they were all good to go at the end of the day. In addition, my owner on the property is a really great guy who relocated out of state for a job. I was able to get it rented for as much as possible pretty quickly getting him great low risk tenants while some income coming in to cover his costs on the home. And for me I get 2 really great guys living in the home for the holidays.

Bottom line here as a win-win-win for the owner, tenants and myself. I love this business!

If you are ever looking a property manager that loves what he does and does what he loves please contact me.